

Product Data Sheet - Net Nannyfi's Chat Monitor

Take control of your children's online chatting

Net Nanny's Chat Monitor is flexible software that discretely monitors and records popular chat and instant messaging programs, notifies you when your child is in potentially risky conversations, limits time spent online chatting, and stops your child from giving out personal information.

Specifications System Requirements

- Windows 98SE, ME, NT4 SP4, 2000 Professional, XP
- Pentium or better
- 32 MB RAM
- 10 MB free hard drive space
- Works with: AOL Chat, MSN Chat, Yahoo! Chat, IRC Chat, AOL Instant Messenger (AIM), MSN Messenger, ICQ, and Yahoo! Messenger

Features

- Know exactly what your kids are saying online records both sides of popular chat and instant messaging conversations plus the date, time, online names, and the full text of chat conversations.
- Send activity reports as often as every hour
Parents can be notified hourly or just once a day by email with a summary report of chat activity for each Windows user including individual recordings of conversations.
- Reduce risk of exposure to online predators
Block your children from revealing certain information such as an address or telephone number.
- Create customisable on-screen warning
Chat Monitor can display personalised messages from parents to remind their child of their family's concerns about online safety.
- Real-time safety
Immediate e-mail alerts if children receive certain "solicitous" messages and conversations can be automatically terminated once a threshold has been reached involving such messages
- Control time spent chatting
Disables access to chat and instant messaging programs, schedules daily and weekly time limits for chatting, and logs all attempts to chat when chat is restricted.
- Minimise tampering
Password protection and robust anti-tampering measures stop those intent on circumventing the software.
- Monitor without detection
Chat monitor can be installed in "stealth" mode, eliminating all visible traces of the program from your computer.
